Read the text and try to replace the words 'deddot', 'floggur' and 'pibbit' with suitable verbs in their correct verb form.

Tina: Hi Jack, how are you floggur?

Jack: Not bad, thanks. Look, would you like to go clubbing tonight? I deddot a fantastic new music bar in the centre. I pibbit there with my friends the other day. If you pibbit, it'll be fun.

Tina: Well, I'm not sure. I don't like pibbit to clubs very much. They're so noisy and full of smoke, you deddot. And my parents won't let me pibbit, anyway. They think that people in clubs and pubs always floggur silly things, like drinking, taking drugs and so on...

Jack: Why are your parents so strict with you? You have never floggur anything wrong, as far as I deddot. Look at your older sister Laura, she pibbit out every week, and your mum and dad floggur not mind it.

Tina: Floggur not mention Laura! She is totally different than me. If you deddot her better, you'd never compare us!

Jack: OK,OK. You floggur not have to be so angry. I just wanted to pibbit somewhere for a change. I deddot not you would hit the ceiling when I invited to to a club. You're so touchy, aren't you?

Tina: Could you floggur me a favour?

Jack: Yes?

Tina: Leave me alone!

Tina: Hi Jack, how are you doing?

Jack: Not bad, thanks. Look, would you like to go clubbing tonight? I know a fantastic new music bar in the centre. I went there with my friends the other day. If you go , it'll be fun.

Tina: Well, I'm not sure. I don't like going to clubs very much. They're so noisy and full of smoke, you know. And my parents won't let me go, anyway. They think that people in clubs and pubs always do silly things, like drinking, taking drugs and so on...

Jack: Why are your parents so strict with you? You have never done anything wrong, as far as I know. Look at your older sister Laura, she goes out every week, and your mum and dad don't mind it.

Tina: Don't mention Laura! She is totally different than me. If you knew her better, you'd never compare us!

Jack: OK,OK. You don't have to be so angry. I just wanted to go somewhere for a change. I didn't know you would hit the ceiling when I invited to to a club. You're so touchy, aren't you?
